

"Real winners don't let negative perceptions hold them back."

Brian Farley was born in the US and is a baseball coach and former player who has been living in the Netherlands for the past 28 years. Since the year 2000, the keynote speaker has been working as a coach for the national team in different capacities. For his extraordinary achievements as a coach, Farley received a knighthood and was voted Coach of the Year at the 2011-2012 sports gala: He has participated in the Olympics in both Sydney and Beijing. In 2011, as national team coach, Farley led the Dutch to the world championship in baseball. This was the first time that an European team has ever won a world championship in baseball. The passionate speaker Brian Farley is well-known for his unconditionally commitment to results. With his inspirational lectures, he gets to the core of what makes people and teams successful and is a shining example for effective working in multi-cultural environments.
